The Story behind Dwight Library's New Sign

The Dwight Public Library recently erected a new sign. In November of 2011 the Dwight Library Board set out to get a new sign. Angela Moore, who lives in rural Dwight and works at Alexander Artworks in Council Grove, submitted several designs for the Board to choose from. The group chose a design they felt represented the library the best, a sunflower rising from the pages of a book.

Funding was obtained through the TCT Community Development Initiative's Community Project Assistance Grant. To date TCT has awarded over $17,000.00 to community projects within their service area through the TCT Community Project Assistance Grant.

The Dwight Library Board has several events, activities and projects planned for the upcoming months, including their summer reading program, increasing computer accessibility for patrons, and helping with Dwight's Summer Festival that takes place this summer.
